TOP COUNTRIES (VIEWS)

CONTENT TYPE AND NEW VS RETURNING VIEWERS

WHAT AM I DOING WELL ? IN THIS YOUTUBE CHANNEL

WHAT DO I NEED TO IMPROVE ?

One video dependency Brazil Waves accounts for 52% of all views. If that video slows, so does your channel. Replicate that content style urgently.	Very low subscriber conversion Only 66 new subscribers from 103K views (0.064%). Add strong subscribe CTAs. End screens, pinned comments, and verbal asks all help.	YouTube Search is weak Only 2.3% of views come from search. Use keyword-rich titles and descriptions. Destinations like Iceland, Brazil, NYC have huge search traffic.
Big view gaps Views collapsed in Aug 2025 and Apr-May 2026, suggesting posting gaps. Consistent upload schedules train the algorithm to keep pushing your content.	Low retention rate Only 21.5% are returning viewers. Consider series-style content (e.g. "Brazil Part 1, 2, 3") to give people a reason to come back.	Community posts unused Your post data shows almost zero community activity. Posts keep subscribers engaged between uploads and signal channel health to YouTube.

MY INSIGHT REALITY

The big picture — The channel pulled 103K views and 1,493 hours of watch time over the past year, which is a solid foundation for a growing travel channel. The 3.34% CTR is actually healthy — it means your thumbnails and titles are doing their job.

What's working well:

Your Brazil Waves Short is carrying the channel right now — 53K views from one clip, driven almost entirely by YouTube's suggestion engine. That's your proof of concept. You also have genuine global reach across 50+ countries, and the algorithm is clearly noticing you (51% of views come from "Suggested Videos," which is the most valuable discovery channel on YouTube).

What needs the most attention:

The biggest risk is single-video dependency — one video is 52% of your total views. If the algorithm stops pushing it, your numbers collapse fast. The goal should be to make 5–10 more clips with that same energy (short, dramatic hook, real reaction, exotic destination).

The subscriber conversion rate is critically low — 66 subscribers from 103K views is a 0.064% rate. Most channels average 1–3%. This means viewers are watching but not committing. Start asking for subscriptions verbally in your videos, use end screens, and pin a comment asking viewers to subscribe.

YouTube Search brings almost nothing (2.3% of views). Travel is a massive search category. Titles like "BRAZIL WAVES ALMOST KILLED ME" are great for social but terrible for search. Add a second, SEO-friendly title in your description — something like "Visiting Copacabana Beach in Rio de Janeiro | Brazil Travel Vlog."

Finally, the view gaps in August and April–May show the algorithm loses momentum when you stop posting. Even one Short per week during slow travel periods can keep the flywheel spinning.
